Non-GAAP Financial Measures

Adjusted EBITDA represents net income (loss) (a GAAP measure) before income taxes, interest income (expense), foreign exchange gain (loss), other non-operating income or expenses (e.g., gains/losses on extinguishment and modifications of debt, etc.), depreciation, impairment losses, amortization (service revenue, purchase accounting, and non-purchase accounting), accretion of contract rights, restructuring expenses, stock-based compensation, litigation expense (income), and certain other non-recurring items. Other non-recurring items are infrequent in nature and are not reflective of ongoing operational activities. Pro forma adjusted EBITDA estimates depend on future levels of revenues and expenses which are not reasonably estimable at this time. Accordingly, we cannot provide a reconciliation between projected pro forma adjusted EBITDA and the most comparable GAAP metric without unreasonable effort.

Net debt is a non-GAAP financial measure that represents debt (calculated as long-term obligations plus short-term borrowings) minus capitalized debt issuance costs plus settlement liabilities minus settlement receivables minus cash and cash equivalents.

Pro forma net debt leverage is a non-GAAP financial measure that represents the ratio of net debt as of a particular balance sheet date to adjusted EBITDA for the last twelve months prior to such date.

Adjusted cash flow is a non-GAAP financial measure that represents adjusted EBITDA less capital expenditures.
